MPACS, MFISHERY and MDAIRY – A way of Socio- economic development

Cooperative is the base of the economic growth of the country like India where the growth of population is very high. With such a rapid growth of population unemployment issue is also equally growing and it becomes a major problem for the country. It will again raise the problem of poverty, social imbalance, economic crisis, brain drainage etc. To solve the problem of unemployment in India to engage a huge population and justification with young generation Cooperative is the best solution. Cooperative is a platform to employ a large number of people taking together. So ministry of Cooperation, Govt. of India is aggressively emphasizing on Cooperative sector for future prospect of development of the country through solving the problem of Ministry of Cooperation has initiated 114 major initiatives to face the social economic issues of the country through cooperative sector.

Hemanta Kumar Das
Director (i/c)

Ministry has introduced the concept of MPACS, MFISHERY and MDAIRY to utilize the human resource of rural India. Through the formation of MPACS the farmers of the country can be taken to an organized form and educated unemployed population can be motivated to engage themselves in agricultural activities. Being an agrarian country there are huge scope to work in agricultural sector. New generation should be motivated and diverted to the agricultural activities for the future growth of agricultural sector of the country. Through the formation of the Multipurpose Primary Agricultural Cooperative Societies (MPACS) more people are attracted and motivated to come forward to do different agricultural activities which will increase the level of production of crops and help to solve the problem of unemployment.

MDAIRY is another strategy to motivate the people to increase the level of production of Milk. As we are aware that there are huge demand or requirement of milk in our country so production of milk is not sufficient in comparisons to the requirement or demand. In Assam daily milk production is 29 lakh liters but daily demand or requirement is 73 lakh liter., although the state is having significant deficit of 35lakh liter milk which is importing from other states of the country . like Assam other states are also facing the problem of deficit of production of milk. So the concept of MDAIRY will be able to help to solve the problem of supply of milk . Another concept of MFISHERY which will help the country to face the issue of crisis of good fish. Most of the states use to import the fish from other states .If through the MFISHERY concept all the fishermen of the country can be organized and motivated to increase the level of production. There are large demand for fish in our country. So there is a good market for fish Most of the states use to import fishes from other state. But more or less every state is having shortage in production of Fish. So the farmers, milk producers and fishermen can be taken into the field of cooperative structure. All the states of the country already have formed MPACS, MFISHERY and MDAIRY . It will definitely help the country to organize the people working in the field of agriculture, fishery and dairy and it will work to increase the level of production with minimize the problem of unemployment.
